companies that have acquired other enterprises through mergers and acquisitions may have in essence become entities that are akin to the global empires of history in this book the author weaves a unique narrative that looks at both empires of business created from mergers and global empires from world history in an attempt to answer the question why do certain empires endure for long periods while others collapse in a short space of time empires formed from mergers or conquest have a hierarchical relationship of control and domination by a single authority or centre that can be described as a parent company or a mother country over another group of people based in a periphery that can be described as a subsidiary company or colony given their similarities in development and structure the author argues from looking at examples of empires in western and asian history as well as major merger cases that long enduring empires created from mergers and global empires have a common cultural trait their practice of tolerance within their organizations societies while there are books on the topics of mergers and empires at present there is no single text that examines the impact of culture on both this book is intended to fill such a void and provide hints and suggestions to those practitioners of mergers as well as students of business and history who want an accessible non-technical narrative on what makes empires whether they are of the nation or of mergers endure and prosper this edited volume provides an anthropological study of family businesses and business families in previous research on family firms and business families the comparative cross-cultural approach of anthropology has so far received little attention as a result family firms and business families are too often analyzed without considering cultural and kinship differences adequately similarly although the topics of kinship and the economy are central to anthropological analysis research on family firms and business families has been a marginal topic only that lacks in-depth discussions within anthropology this volume breaks the mold by offering new empirical and theoretical insights into discussion about business families and family firms from a comparative cross-cultural perspective it first addresses how the business family can be defined in different cultures and how kinship becomes understandable as a process and through doing family in this the book provides a systematic comparison of the connections between family kinship and economic activity in different cultures whereas many of the previous studies have concentrated on only one or a few regions or cultures it also shows the complexities and challenges when grounding the analysis of economic activity and entrepreneurship in cultural context
